STATE NEWS.

In passing the automobile of John Dow of Williamstown, the machine of William McKensie of Westerville, containing 10 persons, was precipitated down a 10-foot bank and landed bottom up, partly supported by a large birch tree, at a narrow curve between the Smith stock farm and the Gale farm on the Williamstown road Sunday afternoon and although the machine was badly smashed not one of the half-score of people was seriously injured. To the fact that the top was up is ascribed the remarkable escape, as the top caught the occupants and sheltered them from contact with trees or from landing in two feet of water.

Several thousand lake and salmon trout were emptied into the Winooski river in Montpelier the other day unintentionally. They were bound from the State hatchery at Roxbury to Orleans and Barton but were so affected by the hot weather that many died, and to save what remained they were returned to the water. Half of the 16 cans were taken to the destination. The shipment contained 32,000 fry.

Henry Kidder was probably fatally injured Monday while at work in Fitchburg division roundhouse at Bellows Falls. He sustained a fracture of the forward part of the skull when his head was caught between a brake-arm and a driving wheel on the engine on which he was working. 1,500 Miles With Broken Neck.

Sunbrowned and apparently light-hearted, George C. Enslow of Trenton, Mo., a native of Chittenden, who a year ago the ninth of next month suffered a broken neck in an accident on a railroad train, is with his family, visiting friends in Rutland and other towns in that section of Vermont, having bumped over 1,500 or more miles of all kinds of roads between Missouri and the Green Mountain State in an automobile in which a large part of the daylight of every 24 hours is spent notwithstanding that a fall or sudden violent jolt might end his life at any moment.

Mr. Enslow with his party, consisting of Mrs. Enslow, formerly Miss Elva P. Halliday of Pittsford, their daughter, Miss Lola P. Enslow, and Albert L. Cople of Trenton are for the present at the home of Mrs. Enslow's sister, Mrs. Edward J. Sawyer, and Mr. Sawyer, at 118 Library avenue, Rutland.

Eleven years ago Mr. and Mrs. Enslow went west and at the time the former was hurt he was fireman on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroad. In attending to his work, he bent forward and a defective coal heaver struck him on the head, fracturing the third bony process of the spinal column. He was taken to his home and for two months lay with his head in a plaster cast.

Then he was moved to St. Luke's hospital in Chicago, where he remained for another six weeks. It was judged impossible to operate in any way to better his condition and all that could be done was to wait for nature to do her best. While in St. Luke's hospital a sort of harness or brace, fitting around his chin, head and shoulders, was made. This serves to hold his head and neck in position and to some extent break the jar as he moves about.

They will spend the greater part of the summer in Rutland, Brandon and other nearby towns, motoring to places of interest throughout western Vermont.

"Why is it, Billy, that some oculists charge so much for glasses?"

"Because, my son, they can get it from a class of people who don't know any better. I get mine of Barter, the Optometrist, who makes a specialty of fitting glasses only. The work is satisfactory, and the price is consistent."—adv.
